

Implication of the Principle of Justice in Economic Governance Based on the Theory of Shahid Sadr (with Emphasis on Distributive Justice)

Mahdi Roayaei

PhD Student in Islamic Economics, Research Institute of Hawzeh and University, Qom, Iran.

roayaei@rihu.ac.ir

Mohsen Davoodabadi Farahani

PhD Graduated in Educational Jurisprudence, Al-Mustafa International University, Qom, Iran.

Mohsend313@gmail.com

Abstract

Aiming to establish justice and balance the economy, governments in every country try to facilitate maximum utilization of all people from goods and possibilities. Economic governance is an emerging academic branch involving explanation of government duties. In this research, economic governance is examined from an Islamic perspective. Given that one of the most important tasks of government in economics is to establish justice, the main question of the research is what are the components of establishing (distributive) justice in economic governance. The findings show that in economic governance based on the rule of justice, it is necessary to distribute opportunities, education, incomes, facilities and public gifts as well as information fairly in society. So that while all people enjoying the minimums, there is a ground for more utilization of these opportunities and properties for all people equally.

Keywords: Jurisprudential Rules; Justice; Distributive Justice, Equality, Economic Governance.

References:

- AusAID. 2008. Economic governance. ANNUAL THEMATIC PERFORMANCE REPORT 2006-07. Canberra. Australian Agency for International Development (AusAID).
- Ayrikyan, Azatuhi & Zaman, Muhammad H. 2012. Creating an Innovation Ecosystem: Governance and the Growth of Knowledge Economies. Boston University.

Kjaer, Anne Mette. 2004. Governance, Key Concepts. Oxford. United Kingdom. Polity Press.

United Nations Development Programme. 1998. Governance for sustainable growth and equity: report of International Conference. New York. United Nations Development Programme. Management Development and Governance Division.

World Bank. 2000. "Poverty Reduction Strategy Papers". IMF and the World Bank. September 7.

_____. 2007. "A Decade of measuring the quality of governance: governance matters". World wide governance indicators. 1996–2007. Washington, D.C.